FARMER-LABOR PARTY

The La Follette Crowd Gets
Scorched In Its Own Fire—
Radicals Have a Jolly Row.

The farmer-labor party, born of a fusion of numerous political groups, has placed candidates in the field for the coming election. Its work was completed Thursday morning when its convention, after an all day and night session chose Perley Parker Christensen, Salt Lake City attorney, and Max S. Hayes, Cleveland, labor leader, as its Presidential and Vice Presidential nominees, respectively.

But the strength of the new movement remains to be seen. The first test came today when a group of dissatisfied delegates, formerly allied with the committee of 48, met and considered placing their own ticket in the field under the 48 banner.

Not all of the forty-eight delegates withdrew from the fusion convention Wednesday night when some 100 or more returned to their own convention. Those who remained were rewarded by seeing Christensen, the chairman of their convention, selected to lead the fusion party while the labor leaders contented themselves with the election of their national chairman Hayes, to second place.

Not all was harmony in the fusion convention during the hours the platform and candidates were under discussion. Heated debate developed over the choice of a name for the new-born political group. The forty-eighters carried their unsuccessful committee fight against the Socialistic doctrines of the radical laborites to the floor. Pursuing the same tactics they used throughout the platform discussion they attempted to force their wishes across through the use of Senator LaFollette's name.

An embryo stamped and a 45-minute demonstration for the Wisconsin senator resulted from the action of this issue. But the well-laid plans were nullified by labor leaders, who blocked demands for an immediate consideration of a platform said to be satisfactory to LaFollette and which, it was claimed, had been concealed by "committee intrigue." The laborites got their platform before the convention first and, although a minority report, drawn along lines said to be acceptable to the Wisconsin senator, was presented, the majority faction won.

Rumblings heard behind the scenes for two days burst upon the convention during the heated platform discussions with forty-eighters charging the fusion party with being "boss-ridden by a clique."

Amidst the uproar, when delegates in every corner of the hall were clamoring to speak, Gilbert E. Roewe, LaFollette's personal representative, sent in word that the senator would not under any circumstances become the party nominee on the majority platform which was adopted soon afterward.

Removal of the LaFollette as an anchor for the less radical of the forty-eighters left them free to be shoved aside by the votes of the laborites and the latter's control was never again seriously questioned. They held the reins and the forty-eighters trailed along through the rest of the session, although once they tried to raise their voices in the proceedings and discourage adoption of the name "farmer-labor" as a party designation.

They contended without success that the "white collar slaves" and eastern liberals, both small merchants and professional men, would be driven away by what they described as a "class" name.

The appeals went unheeded and the title already approved by the labor and farmer groups went through with a whoop.

REAL CHARITY, QUIETLY DONE

Some Striking Instances of the Good Work Done By the Community Service In Rockland.

It may be very interesting to the people of Rockland to know just what the Community Service is doing, and to what use the $125 appropriated monthly by the local Red Cross is put. The families or persons helped must be those who are not receiving any assistance from the city or state, and there are a number of worthy families who have received timely help in the way of groceries, fuel, medicine and clothing.

One woman over 70 was taken very ill. Her relatives here were too poor to help, the nature of the illness making medical aid expensive, and there were eight other mouths to feed. The city from which she came claimed that her settlement was not there. Other investigations were made, which brought no improvement, so it was a case of poverty helping poverty until the Community Service paid for the care of the woman, supplied blankets, bedding and night clothing, lifting a big burden, and relieving the anxiety of the relatives.

Another case—a man with a family of six was taken very ill with abscesses on his lungs. This was a very long sickness, leaving the man as weak as a baby. Woollens were needed, together with blankets, clothing, etc. Again the Service stepped in and supplied the necessary things, lifting another burden.

Another case was that of a dear old lady over 83 who was worried to death because she could not pay her water bill. She was still owing part of last year's bill. She has no means of support, only what neighbors or friends give, and she absolutely refused city assistance, being afraid she might lose the wee bit of a home she owns. Then too she was suffering from a broken hip, and had been suffering for a few years. The Community Service made the old lady happy with the knowledge that not only the present was taken very ill with abscesses on his lungs. This was a very long sickness, leaving the man as weak as a baby. Woollens were needed, together with blankets, clothing, etc. Again the Service stepped in and supplied the necessary things, lifting another burden.

Visitation is made on the average of 12 families a week. During the winter the average is much greater. Arrangements are being made for two "outings" for mothers with their children this summer.

What the Community Service is anxious to get is a cottage somewhere near the shore where a mother who has never had a vacation can take her family for 10 days, and have the time of her life—no washtub, no ironing, no dishes, just rest, and then, when her 10 days are up another family goes. Has no one a vacant cottage to dispose of for ten weeks in the year? If so, please get in touch with the chairman, Miss Caro Littlefield.

TO LAY CORNERSTONES

Interesting Event At Knox Arboretum
On Gen. Knox's Birthday.

The cornerstone of the Museum building which is to be erected by the Knox Academy of Arts and Sciences in what was formerly known as Utopia Park, will be laid one week from tomorrow. C. Vey Holman, chairman of the building committee, and Norman W. Lermond, curator-librarian have issued the following invitation:

"The Knox Academy of Arts and Sciences is an incorporated State Association having for its objects the purpose to further an interest in natural history in Maine and to build through nature study a more intelligent and serviceable manhood and womanhood for Maine.

"On July 25, the anniversary of the birth of Gen. Henry Knox, Washington's Secretary of War, the Academy will lay, in a sixty-acre tract set apart for the use of the Academy as a site for its buildings and a park, wild life preserve, arboretum and bird sanctuary, the corner stone of a permanent fire proof museum building to house and preserve the natural history collection of the Society. We invite your presence upon this occasion.

"The institution is practically without funds and dependent upon membership fees and the donations of a generous public to accomplish its purposes.

"We should appreciate your affiliating with its membership or assisting in any measure that may be pleasurable to you in the furtherance of its aims."

SILAS HOXIE'S RELATIVES

A Fortune Awaits Them If They Can Be Located.

Does anyone remember a man by the name of Silas O. Hoxie and can anyone locate brothers, sisters or other relatives?

Gov. Milliken has received the following letter which was evidently "delayed in transmission." It is given to the public with the hope that some surviving relative may be found.

Alameda, Calif., May 30.

Dear Sir:

I am writing you a few lines to see if you could secure for me some information. A friend of mine died recently and he was a native of the State of Maine. He is known to have relatives in Maine, but they cannot be located. He left considerable of an estate which includes five houses and lots and a ranch near Los Gatos, Calif., and I do not know how much money in bank. His death was rather sudden and the remains were cremated four days after death. The estate is in the hands of the public administrator at present and I understand is to be placed for sale in a short time. I would like very much to locate some of his relatives if it would be possible and not too much trouble to you.

The party's name was Silas O. Hoxie. He is said to have a sister and brothers in Maine, but just where I could not say. He was 68 years of age and a sturdy and healthy man.

If you can secure any information I would be a thousand times obliged if you would communicate with me immediately. P. M. Strong, 533 Central avenue, Alameda, Calif.

"BACK TO NORMAL"

In an informal address to the neighbors who gathered to welcome him home, Senator Harding made one memorable utterance that might well serve for the keynote of the coming campaign:

"Let me say it to you, friends and neighbors—aye, let me say it to any who may be noting our exchange of greetings today—if I believed in one-man government, if I believed the superman were necessary to appeal to the sober sense of the republic and ask our people to plant their feet in secure and forward paths once more, I would not be here in the capacity which has inspired your greetings. Normal men and back to normality will steady a civilization which has been fevered by the supreme upheaval of all the world."

"Back to normal!" How that will appeal to a country fed up with the hysteria of a one-man government. Let the country get away from the one-man idea, the bureaucracy, the pushing of the average citizen off the map, Harding and Coolidge and back to normal!

TUBERCULOSIS DECREASING

The past year, which was marked with a lessening death rate for nearly all communicable diseases, shows a further encouraging sign in the phenomenon of figure of tuberculosis deaths in Maine during the past twelve months. The total of deaths for tuberculosis in all forms in Maine during 1919 was but 759, of which 638 were of the pulmonary type. Just how markedly downward is the tendency of this "white plague" can be shown no more strikingly than by quotation of the figures for 1920, the year when Maine was first admitted to the federal registration area, and the first recorded statistics were made. For that year there were 1513 tuberculosis deaths, of which 1352 were pulmonary. These figures indicate that the disease has been reduced practically one-half in the last 28 years and brings the hopeful message of still further reduction which can be safely predicted for the future.

OLD HOME WEEK COMING

Old Home Week as observed by Rockland in former years was always very much of a success, a series of successes that the coming occasion ought to duplicate. The committees may be counted upon to do their respective pieces of work, and they will naturally expect to have the cooperation of the men and women of the community. Most of all we will look to see the absent sons and daughters making early preparation to come home. That really is what is essential to the success of an Old Home Week celebration.

MOTOR CARS ON MAIN STREET

Rockland is proud to welcome to her streets the automobilists who are flocking here from every part of the country—but some of them, it is observed, repay this hospitality by disregarding the well-understood rules of traffic. Through a desire to be friendly to all visitors our officials often exceed the bounds of leniency. It may become necessary to round up some of the violators of street regulations. Probably only a lesson or two would be necessary.

Another of the neat things about a Chautauqua season ticket is that it can be passed around in the family, being thoroughly transferable. Thus no part of it need be wasted. The Rockland Chautauqua next week will be full of pleasure to all who enjoy high-class programs.

The political organizers throughout the State are getting into gear, ready for the launching of the campaign next month. This is a Republican year.

The opening of the great international yacht race is a set-back for the American—but wait a bit.

NOTICE—E. B. Richards wishes to inform his former as well as present patrons that he is at Lake Megunticook as usual to receive motor, picnic and fishing parties. I am now located on the East shore facing Turnpike. Keep on direct road until you come to sign. Phone Lincolnville 14-4.

LONG DISTANCE MESSAGES

Rockland Radio Station, Built By East Coast Fisheries Company, Is a Wonderful Institution.

A well governed railroad system is able to keep absolute tabs on train movements through the medium of the telegraph instrument. The method is as old as railroading, itself, and without it there would be constant menace to life and property.

With the coming of the wireless telegraph the same principle was applied to ships at sea, with resulting commercial benefits that have been enormous, to say nothing of the many spectacular instances where the S. O. S. call has saved many lives.

Rockland has been on the edge of these things, thanks to ambitious amateurs and to the operations of the Naval Training Station during the World War, but from the standpoint of wireless achievement it has suddenly become the most important city in the State, and with the probable elimination of the naval radio station at Otter Cliffs, near Bar Harbor, will have no rival in this corner of New England. The discontinuance of the Otter Cliffs station is forecasted for the reason that Uncle Sam does not compete with private interests so long as those interests are fully capable of handling government and commercial business.

The new Rockland station answers these requirements to the letter, and is another benefit made possible for the community by the East Coast Fisheries Company, which owns the expensive plant.

It was built primarily for the company's convenience in communicating with its trawlers when the latter are on the fishing banks, or while they are cruising to and from the banks. Each of the steam trawlers has a complete wireless plant and an operator constantly on duty. It is of the utmost importance that the company keep in touch with these craft, owing to a sudden demand which might arise for fresh fish, and for numerous other reasons.

The establishment of a shore station which has a communication radius of 1600 miles brings the trawler fleet and the home office into as close relationship as the telephone. The steam trawler Pelican, for instance might be on the Grand Banks, with a partial fare, and planning to stay until its hatches are filled. The East Coast Fisheries Company is suddenly faced with a need for fresh fish, or fish for the Porthouse Cod department. Across the hundreds of miles of waves flash the signal letters of the Rockland station, K. D. R. E. and the alert operator on the Pelican gets a summons for the trawler to proceed immediately to Rockland with its partial fare.

Eventually, The Courier-Gazette is told, a similar radio station will be erected on T. Wharf, Boston, where the East Coast Fisheries Company has an other large plant. When this is in operation, it will have the effect of making Rockland a compass station, which can aid ships caught in fog or storm, by furnishing their exact location. Just how this can be figured out at points several hundred miles away from the trawler, must be explained by the technically informed. Suffice it for we landlubbers, that the stunt can be done.

By having its own radio station the East Coast Fisheries Company not only handles its business much more efficiently, but can push messages through without the delays which sometimes ensue when the company was dependent upon the naval radio stations.

From the standpoint of commercial business the possibilities of the new plant are so great as not to be easily gauged. This does not mean that the company expects to derive a large revenue from Rockland business men, in competition with the telephone or telegraph. It means that messages will be received from persons on board Transatlantic ships and relayed from the Rockland radio station to points all over the country. Messages received at the station from land points would, in turn, be transmitted to ships at sea. "Free air" becomes a figure of speech when applied to wireless communication, for the rate will be 12 cents a word for Transatlantic messages and 8 cents a word for messages sent to coastwise ships. These rates are, of course, very mild and reasonable when compared with the importance of the service, and the privilege of having it here 24 hours in the day.

The Rockland radio station is located at Rockland Highlands a few rods from where the car track makes its sharp turn near G. H. Hart's grocery store. A more picturesque place could scarcely have been chosen for the building, which stands on the very brink of an abandoned lime quarry. On either side of the little frame structure, and 200 feet apart stand the wireless masts, each 125 feet high. Attached to each is a small ladder which runs as far as the crow's nest. The two spars were set by Fred M. Blackington and constituted one of the most interesting as well as one of the most difficult tasks which he performed for the East Coast Fisheries Company since he signed up with that concern for construction work.

Under these towering masts, gingerly avoiding a network of suspicious looking, but perfectly innocent wires, walked two representatives of The Courier-Gazette Thursday afternoon, bent on getting something for a "story."

All was quiet inside of the station, and Walter C. Bay, who is superintendent of the radio plant explained that business had been suspended until the electrical storm was over. Mr. Bay is a New Yorker, whose interest in wireless telegraphy began when he was a lad of 14, and whose constant study of it has made him one of the best informed radio operators in the country. Part of his schooling he obtained at a Marconi institute. His ability was put to a test during the World War, when he officiated as a radio operator in the transport service. His associates at the new station are Carl J. Marshall, of Boston, who is maintenance man for the station and fleet; and Fred A. Lange and R. D. Cosgrove, both of Boston, and C. Austin Sherman of Rockland, who are operators.

erators. Four hours on and eight hours off is the working schedule. While the rumbling of the thunder was gradually dying away in the distance, Mr. Bay explained to the two novices that the plant is operated by a 3 k. w. transmitter of the very best design; and that the receiving equipment is of the naval type and of the latest model. The grounding system is handicapped somewhat by the station's nearness to the quarry but arrangements to counteract this are being made.

The rain ceased and the clouds began to dissipate in front of the hot July sun.

"Try her now," said Mr. Bay.

Lever were turned, buttons were pressed, and a motor began its revolutions, and with a series of deafening crashes the transmitter was at work. The receiving gear was then adjusted, but the electrically charged atmosphere was still in an obstinate mood, and much to the regret of the two novices Mr. Bay and his assistants were unable to pluck from it the latest news concerning the International yacht race.

The first message from the new station was by L. J. Taylor, president of the East Coast Fisheries Company, to Mark W. Norman, one of the corporation's officials, who was on the steamship Philadelphia, bound for Europe. "Listening in" on the news of the world is one of the popular diversions of a radio station, and the operators here know of the most important events long in advance of their publication in any newspaper.

The Arlington station begins disseminating its interesting information at 10 p. m., first the time, then the weather, and then the Associated Press service. Rome begins sending at 9 o'clock, and keeps at it as long as the signals can be heard. News from Germany during the war came from Nauen, Germany, said to be the most powerful radio station in the world. Germany does all of its best work at long distance.

The longest conversations (measured in miles) which have yet been held by the Rockland station, were with ships off Cape Race, and 590 miles east of Delaware Breakwater.

Before the Rockland station measures up to Supt. Bay's satisfaction at least two more things are to be done. One of these will be the installation of a Western Union telegraph wire; the other will be the erection of a powerful searchlight in the crow's nest of one of the masts. This light will be used in signaling the trawlers as they round Owl's Head, and instructing them where to dock.

The telephone call for the Rockland radio station is No. 7. Try a message just for fun.

"DID MORE THAN I DREAMED IT COULD"

"I Wish Everyone Who Suffers As I Did Would Try Tanlac," Says Portland Woman.

"I just wish everyone who suffers as I did would only try Tanlac, for I know it would help them just like it has me," said Miss Emma Smith, 161 Fort Road, South Portland, Maine, in a statement the other day.

"For the past two years I was bothered with stomach trouble and nervousness, and during that time I learned what it meant to suffer," she continued. "After every meal I was in misery, what I ate fermented and gave me terrible cramps in my stomach. I had a smothering feeling in my chest and throat and it was hard for me to get my breath. My nerves were all unstrung and I would worry and fret over little things I had always passed by unnoticed. I would wake up several times during the night, and the little sleep I got was restless and I could hardly tell I had been to bed at all. I felt tired out all day long and the housework became a burden to me."

"Well, I must say that Tanlac has done more for me than I had ever dreamed any medicine would, and I have so much more strength and energy that I am feeling even better than I did before my troubles began. I am hungry all the time now, everything agrees with me and I never have the slightest sign of stomach trouble. My nerves are so steady I can sleep all night long without waking up even once, and I get up feeling rested and refreshed. My housework does not tire me in the least, and thanks to Tanlac my health is just so fine that life is now a pleasure."

Tanlac is sold in Rockland by Corner Drug Store, F. M. White & Co., Vinalhaven, Whitney & Brackett, Thomaston, and by the leading druggist in every town.—adv.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

The New Party.

The proposed new party was finally formed at Chicago on the 13th of July, after hot contests between the Committee of Forty Eight, the Labor party, and other radical groups amalgamated with them. The convention warmly cheered every reference to the Russian Soviet government, and called for a like government in the United States; and the platform adopted called for the recognition of Ireland and Soviet Russia; for democratic control of industry by the workers; for public ownership and operation of public utilities and natural resources; for a steeply graduated income tax; for a referendum before war "except after an act of actual invasion;" and for the election of federal judges for four years, subject to recall.

The Vice President No Figurehead

Vice President Marshall remarked the other day, in his usual jocular vein, that it was his Constitutional function to preside over the Senate when it was in session, and to lead the rest of the year; and he intimated that he meant to loaf until December. As a rule, Vice Presidents have had little to do with public affairs. But there will be a change, if Senator Harding is elected President. He has announced his purpose to make Governor Coolidge, when Vice President, his "chief partner," and to arrange for his participation in all Cabinet meetings. There is no constitutional impediment to this enlargement of the Vice Presidential function. For the Constitution makes no mention of the Cabinet; and Governor Coolidge's executive experience in Massachusetts would make him extremely useful in the Cabinet.

The Suffrage Prospect.

The drive for the ratification of the Federal Suffrage Amendment in season to admit women to the nationwide use of the ballot in the Presidential election becomes more hectic and uncertain, as the weeks pass, and the eagerly-desired thirty sixth State is not assured. Suffragists hope now center upon Tennessee and North Carolina, in which States, special sessions of the Legislatures have been called for the 9th and 10th of August. The suffrage prospects are not bright in either State. In Tennessee, leading papers are opposing the amendment strongly, partly because of its apparent conflict with a provision of the State Constitution which forbids the submission of a Federal amendment to a Legislature elected prior to any opportunity for the voters to pass upon the issue in their choice of members; and in North Carolina, a poll of the members shows a majority opposed to ratification. Louisiana refused to call special sessions.

An Attempted Injunction Fails.

An attempt by the American Constitutional League, through its President, Charles S. Fairchild, to secure from the District of Columbia Supreme Court an injunction to prevent Secretary of State Coby from signing a ratification proclamation when the 36th State had ratified, failed on the 13th, through the refusal of the Court to act. The application of the League was based on alleged illegal action in two States—in West Virginia, the fraudulent application of an anti-suffrage legislator, in order to get the requisite majority, and in Missouri, a provision in the State Constitution forbidding the ratification of any amendment which interfered with the self-government of the State. The Court took the ground that the power of Legislatures to ratify was derived from the United States Constitution, and could not be restricted by State constitutions or laws.

A Serious Coal Crisis.

The Governors of the New England States agree in declaring that unless those States can obtain quick and effective relief from the Interstate Commerce Commission, or by executive action by the President, to overcome the present traffic congestion, they will be faced to face with the worst steam coal crisis in their history, much worse and more dangerous than during the war. Industries are shutting down, and railroad schedules are being curtailed for lack of fuel, and it is becoming a difficult problem to keep the waterworks and sewage pumping stations running. During the last three months—months most favorable to movement by land and sea—New England has been receiving coal at the rate of only 13,600,000 tons per annum, instead of the needed 25,000,000 tons. Meanwhile, huge quantities of coal are being shipped abroad.

The Plucky Poles.

It has fallen to the lot of the Poles to form almost the only line of defense against the bloodthirsty Bolsheviks. The Allies have not contributed men, or munitions, or supplies; and, after weeks of heavy and continuous fighting, the Polish forces are reported to be withdrawing from Brest-Litovsk, Vilna and Pinsk, before a great Russian Bolshevik movement, along a greatly extended front. The whole Polish nation has armed for defense, including all ages and groups of the male population, and including also thousands of women volunteers. Whether this is to be the last chapter in the greatly protracted Polish tragedy, or whether the Poles are at last to come to their own, will soon be determined.

The Spa Conference

The conference between the Allied Supreme Council and the Germans at Spa resulted in wide differences—the German delegates flatly refusing to comply with any of the Allies' demands, as to reparations, or disarmament, or coal requirements. The deadlock over the coal question reached such a point on the 13th of July that Marshal Foch and Field Marshal Wilson, the Allied military chiefs, were hastily summoned to Spa, to give advice as to possible coercive measures. The attitude of the German delegates, upon all the points at issue, has been stubborn from the start, and almost defiant. As to the coal deliveries, while they profess inability to meet the requirements of the Treaty, they are marketing large quantities of coal in Switzerland.

A Clash Between Allies.

Suspicious and jealousies between Greeks and Italians culminated in an open clash last week near Ephesus when a band of Greek soldiers entered the Italian zone to capture Turks who were shipping opium. The Italians objected and opened a machine gun fire upon the Greeks, who charged the Italians with fixed bayonets and routed them. There were a number killed and wounded on both sides. Italian protests to the high commissioners at Constantinople have been disregarded—the Italians being incensed by the Greek pursuit of Turkish Nationalists into the Italian zone. Asia Minor, with its hostile nationalities, rival claims and conflicting "mandates," is fast becoming an acute "danger zone."

E. W. Berry, insurance agent, has received his commission as notary public.

In Gov. Milliken's latest list of appointments occurs the name of James E. Stevens of this city, who has been selected as trustee of State Hospitals to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Hon. Frank B. Nichols of Bath. Mr. Stevens was the Republican nominee for mayor last March. Gov. Milliken has made another excellent appointment.

Miss Beulah Crozier, who has been studying for trained nurse in the Bath City Hospital, has returned home and is continuing her work at Knox Hospital.

The paving blocks which were dumped on the Y. M. C. A. lot opposite the Court House when Union street was rebuilt, have been removed to a less conspicuous site on the city's property, between Tillson avenue and Winter street. The change is much appreciated by those who did not wish to see the premises between the Court House and Public Library marred.

The telephone company's new auto truck has arrived, and Robert M. Packard and his men are proud as peacocks over it.

"Keep to the right" signs have been posted on the Tillson avenue mail. The rule was being generally disregarded by all kinds of traffic.

The Samoset has about 250 guests this early in the season and the local hotels are crowded to capacity nearly every night.

The 14 steam trawlers tied up at the East Coast Terminal Docks and the Messer wharf present a very striking marine picture particularly the nine which are moored alongside and end to end on the southern side of Tillson wharf. It would be much more satisfactory of course to have all of the big gray ships in motion so long as they are not it is a view which you cannot afford to miss.

During these hot nights the occupants of the Central Fire Station cool off by having boxing matches. The championship appears to lie between the genial chief engineer and Ned Benner.

R. G. Ingraham, the veteran bandmaster, played with the Belfast and Fourth of July and was treated to a great surprise when the starting director in active service in the State, and announced that he would lead the band in the next selection out, the applause was so persistent that he was obliged to repeat the number. He was also given a great hand as he left the stand to catch the afternoon heat. Mr. Ingraham confesses to being 75 years old, but few of the young musicians care to chase him on an all-day band job.

Henry Jordan, local agent for Nissen's Bakery of Portland, was made happy this week by the arrival of a large new auto delivery truck.

When the Lime Rock Railroad train reached the Norwood shed the other day Conductor Clough rubbed his eyes in astonishment. There had been 14 cars in the train when it left the quarry, but for the life of him the conductor could count only 13 when the train reached the shed, yet there stood Rear Brakeman Walter Rogers in his accustomed position between the last two cars, whistling "Merrily, We Roll Along." When the train came to a stop Conductor Clough went back to investigate and found that the rear car had left the rails some distance back, and turned bottom up in the ditch. Brakeman Rogers saw that the car was acting suspiciously, and left it just in time to avoid a serious accident.

FULLER-COBB-DAVIS ANNOUNCE THEIR ANNUAL SALE OF FINE FURS DURING JULY AND AUGUST ROCKLAND, MAINE

Among those who took examinations before the U. S. inspectors in Portland this week was Lewis L. Callahan of Rockland, who received license as first mate, unlimited. He completed the examination in record time and without missing a question.

F. Woodward and William West of New York, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bennett and Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Hooper of Trenton, N. J., and John C. Howard of Boston were among the visitors to Rockland this week, who came for the special purpose of inspecting the fish industry. They were registered at the Thorndike.

Naval life, as depicted on the screen, proved very interesting to the large group of spectators which assembled last night on the Y. M. C. A. lot at the corner of Main and Limerock streets, where an open air movie show was conducted by the naval recruiting party of which Chief Gunners' Mates Charles W. Hinds and Andrew Lux are at the head. One side of the street light was shadowed and the pictures, which are excellent ones, were shown with good effect. Views of the Newport Training School, warships, and incidents in the everyday life of the sailor, were presented, and the purpose of the recruiting party was explained.

The Senator Baxter Engine Co. of Bath and the Niagara Engine Co. of Brunswick have become serious rivals as the result of the recent muster in Portland, which was won by the Bath engine. If the Brunswick company really believes that it has something on Bath, and that the Portland result was a fluke, why not settle the matter at the firemen's muster which is to be held in Rockland on Old Home Week?

The block at the corner of Main and Elm streets, which was owned by E. E. Richardson, and which is occupied by Frank L. Weeks, confectioner, was sold Thursday to Harmon Davis, who desires the property as a home for the Davis Sample Shop. Mr. Davis was burned out in the big fire, and is occupying temporary quarters in the annex to the Park Theatre Building. Convinced that he must buy, if he is to continue business in Rockland, he closed the deal with Mr. Ingraham. Mr. Weeks' lease does not expire until September, and unless he changes his mind between now and that time he will not continue in business. It will interest his many friends and patrons to know that he has been serving the public on Main street for 42 years, the last seven of which he has been in the candy business. Prior to that he was employed in the Crockeray store of his brother A. Ross Weeks. The Ingraham building was occupied many years as a market by the late Job Ingraham and E. K. Maddocks has been a long time tenant of the upper story. Rumor says that the block was sold for $14,000.

SHAMROCK GETS FIRST

Accident To Resolute Causes
Loss of the First Race For America Cup.

Great Britain gained the first toe-hold in 49 years on the America's Cup Thursday when Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger, Shamrock, IV, won the first race of the 1920 regatta after the defender Resolute had been forced out of the running by an accident to her rigging.

The green challenger must win two more races out of a possible maximum of four if she is to achieve Sir Thomas Lipton's dream of taking the bottomless pewter trophy back to Britain. Resolute must win three out of four to retain the cup which has been in possession of the New York Yacht Club since 1931. The second race will start at noon Saturday.

Shamrock IV's victory Thursday was won in the face of what had seemed certain defeat. Resolute had taken the lead at the start and held it by an ever-widening margin until, as she swooped within half a mile of the turning mark 15 miles from the start, spectators on the great fleet of pleasure craft saw her great area of bellying canvas shiver and begin to sink, fluttering down her mast. A sudden gust had snapped her throat halyards and a second later the jaws of her gaff were shattered beyond repair.

DIRECTOR SANBORN RESIGNS

Leaves Sea and Shore Fisheries Department To Engage In Insurance Business.

In order to devote his entire time to the insurance business, in which he believes that he can achieve much better financial results, Harry L. Sanborn yesterday tendered his resignation as director of Sea and Shore Fisheries. With a full understanding of his desires, the commission promptly accepted his resignation, and he will sever his connection with the department at noon today.

Director Sanborn entered upon his official duties two years ago last May, bringing to the position a valuable experience which he had gained while engaged in the fish business at Vinalhaven. He has devoted a great deal of time to the office and has done much to increase the efficiency of this important department. The Commission parts with his services regretfully, and everybody connected with the industry will be sorry to have him leave.

Mr. Sanborn will have the agency for this city and vicinity of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Philadelphia, with which he has been connected for several years. In October, 1919, he received an honorary card from the vice president of the company, informing him that he (Mr. Sanborn) held 25th position among all of the company's agents in the United States for amount of insurance written in October. This was especially gratifying to Mr. Sanborn in view of the fact that he had worked as insurance agent only eight days that month. Last year he had all others in the Portland vicinity with a total of $136,000 paid for insurance.

The Penn Mutual News Letter of November 1919, published Mr. Sanborn's portrait and the following article: "During the convention in May at our Home Office we had an illustration of efficiency in sales by a representative who agreed to go out with another agent that night and prove that before he went to bed he would close four or five applications with prospects he had never before seen. Along this very line of good work it is our opinion that we shall have to take our hats off to one of our Maine representatives, Harry L. Sanborn, of Vinalhaven, who is under contract with our General Agents B. G. & C. M. March, of Portland, Maine. Mr. Sanborn has been under appointment by the Governor of Maine as Director of Sea and Shore Fisheries, with his office at Rockland. In this position he does not have much time for soliciting life insurance but he makes it a point to return home every Saturday by steamer from Rockland to Vinalhaven, remaining over Sunday, and he back at his work in Rockland on Monday.

"In two days' actual working time at Vinalhaven the very last of August Mr. Sanborn closed 17 applications for $20,000 insurance. Fifteen out of these 17 applicants he had never talked with on life insurance.

"In not over fifteen days' actual work he wrote policies to the amount of $101,000, and of this business about 75 per cent was paid for with application."

ABOUT SHARKS

Subject That Never Has Lost Interest, Since Jonah's Time.

As the "open season" for sharks approaches, South American liners arriving in New York report the sighting of these sea monsters, a fact which lends interest to the following communication to the National Geographic Society by Dr. Hugh M. Smith, a world-famous authority on fish:

"When giant fishes are mentioned most people will at once think of the shark, among which, indeed, are found the largest fish now existing," writes Dr. Smith. "Of the many species of sharks noteworthy on account of their size there are about half a dozen which are preeminent. The difference in their disposition, some being as harmless as doves and others the incarnation of ferocity."

"The sleeper shark (Somnolus microcephalus), whose scientific name fits it so admirably, appears to have developed its body in the most efficient manner. It is a sluggish, stupid glutton, about six times as long as an average man. At home in the Arctic regions, it sometimes makes visits as far south as Cape Cod, the British Isles and Oregon. It is most often observed lying quietly on the surface, apparently dozing and easily approached, but at times, when hungry, it rouses itself and fiercely attacks whales, biting huge pieces out of their sides and tails, and when feeding on the carcass of a whale which has been killed by hunters it is so voracious that it permits spears and knives to be thrust into it without seeming to take any notice."

One of the most prodigious and perhaps the most formidable of sharks is the "man-eater" (Carcharodon carcharias). It roams through all temperate and tropical seas and everywhere is an object of dread. Its maximum length is 40 feet and its teeth are three inches long. While there are few authentic instances of sharks attacking human beings (prior to the recent tragedies), there have undoubtedly been many cases where sharks simply swallowed people who had fallen overboard, just as they would swallow any other food."

How easy it would be for a man-eater to devour a person whole may be judged from the finding of an entire hundred-pound sealion in the stomach of a 39-foot shark on the California coast. A certain man-eater 36½ feet long had jaws 20 inches wide, inside measure, and teeth 2½ inches long. This may have been the "great fish" of the scripture narrative, and it is possible that at that time much larger man-eaters existed than are now known, as shark teeth with cutting edges five inches long have been found on the sea-bottom, and these are believed by naturalists to have belonged to sharks not long dead. The phosphate beds of South Carolina yield very large fossil teeth of a shark which was related to the man-eater of the present day. Judging from the comparative size of these teeth, Professor Goode thought that sharks 70 or 80 feet long must have been common."

Many years ago a Norwegian bishop in a learned paper brought to the attention of the scientific and theological worlds a shark which he attempted to prove must have been the "great fish" that swallowed Jonah. This was the basking shark (Cetorhinus maximus) known also as the elephant or bone shark, which is an inhabitant of the polar seas, but occasionally strays as far south as Virginia and California, and in former years was not rare on the United States and British coasts. The species has the habit at times of collecting in schools at the surface and basking in the sun with its back partly out of water. It reaches a maximum length of 50 feet and is exceeded in size by only three or four animals extant. Provided with small teeth, it feeds on fishes and floating crustaceans, and is not of a ferocious disposition. It is dangerous only by virtue of its great bulk and when attacked its powerful tail easily demolishes boats."

In former years the basking shark was hunted for its oil on the coast of Norway and Ireland; it was also harpooned on the shore of Massachusetts in the early part of the last century, and as many as 12 barrels of oil were sometimes obtained from the liver of one shark. There are many records of basking sharks 25 to 38 feet long from the coast of New York, Massachusetts, and Maine, but the species has not been common in our waters in recent years."

The largest of all fishes, the largest of all cold-blooded animals and the largest of all existing animals, with the exception of a few species of whales, is the whale shark (Rhincodon typus), originally described from Good Hope, but now known from India, Japan, South America, Panama, California, and various other places, a small specimen having been obtained on the Florida coast a few years ago. This shark has a very broad and obtuse snout and an exceedingly wide mouth armed with numerous minute teeth; the dark-colored body is marked with many small whitish spots. The species is stated to attain a length of 70 feet and is known to exceed 50 feet. Notwithstanding its immense size, however, it is harmless to man unless attacked, and feeds on the small creatures for which its teeth are adapted. Its huge bulk makes it dangerous in the same way that a whale is dangerous. Years ago it was reported that the sperm-whale fishermen at the island of Saint Denis, in the Indian Ocean, dreaded to harpoon a whale shark by mistake, and stories are told of a harpooned fish, "having by a lightning-like dive exhausted the supply of rope which had been accidentally fastened to the boat, dived deeper still, and so pulled a pirogue and crew to the bottom."

How Many Women Are Like This?

Can anything be more weary for women than the ceaseless round of household duties? Oh! the monotony of it all—work and drudge; no time to be sick; tired, ailing, yet cannot stop. There comes a time when something "snaps" and they find themselves "simply worn out," and to make matters worse, have contracted serious feminine disorder which almost always follows the constant overtaxing of a woman's strength.

Then they should remember that there is no remedy like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—the experience of these two women establishes that fact:

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—"After the birth of my last child I had organic trouble. My doctor said it was caused by too heavy lifting and I would have to have an operation. I would not consent to an operation and let it go for over a year, having my sister do my work for me as I was not able to walk. One day my aunt came to see me and told me about your medicine—said it cured her of the same thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and since then I have been a well woman, able to take care of my house and family without any trouble or a day's pain. I am ready and thankful to swear by your medicine any time. I am forty-four years old and have not had a day's illness of any kind for three years."

—Mrs. H. Koenig, 617 Ellis Blvd., Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Carver on Green Island which is now owned by Senator Thad C. Carver of Kansas. He sent a small piece to Northfield, Vt., to be polished and received it this week highly polished and a very encouraging report from the monumental contractors of that locality asking the price on carload lots and on rock of large dimensions. As the formation of this stone is very similar to common granite and is in boulders blocks of most any size can be obtained.

PARK THEATRE

Those who worship at the shrine of Tom Mix will find today, in his latest picture, "The Daredevil," a work which eclipses all his previous efforts in the exploitation of stunts. Mix is seen as an amazing young, tender-foot known as "Anything Once." He is well named and plunges into the most astounding proceedings in the most reckless fashion. He takes a delight in trouble and before he finishes with the superior natives he has shown them a thing or two. Off and on Mix rides, fights, jumps trains, climbs houses, and at one point runs blithely along the backs of some dozen horses until he comes to the end one which he mounts and rides away. And he does it all quite as if he were having the best time in the world. That is one reason why you enjoy him so—his high spirits are contagious. The prettiest leading lady on the screen accompanies Mix through the picture. She is Eva Novak, and the picture is twice enjoyable because of her.

Movie fans will see Monday and Tuesday one of the most widely advertised pictures in the country. It is called "On With the Dance," and Mae Murray heads the cast. It tells how four persons found their way to New York, actuated by different impulses, in the adventures which befell them. Here are some of the scenes:

Statue of Liberty—Where Sonia saw first.

Ellis Island—Where Sonia landed.

East River pier—Where Sonia hoped to end it all.

Fleet street, lower East Side—Where Sonia's father was killed.

The Criminal Court—Where the trial took place.

The Tower Home in the Van Vochten Building—Where Sonia lived for a time.

Grand Central Terminal—Where Peter first hit New York.

The Peacock Room, Broadway—Sonia danced and where Peter shot Jimmie.

The Plaza Hotel—Where the millionaire from the West lived.

Lady Joan's New Hospital—Where Peter and Lady Joane find joy.

Sixty-fifth street and Fifth Avenue—Lady Joane's home.

Central Park—Where Sonia met the millionaire from the West.

Upper Broadway—The home of Peter and Sonia.

Riverside Drive—Where Fay Desmond lived—ady.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

RUSSIA'S GRAVE MORAL ERROR

Forcible Seizure of Land Understandable, but to Be Regretted as Making a Precedent to Justify Dishonesty.

Article XIX.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

An examination of Russia, the patient, just before the treatment was started, reveals several findings which are necessary to complete the history and physical examination.

Russia was 78 per cent illiterate. This means that nearly four-fifths of the people in Russia could not read or write. It does not mean that they "little know" the divine agent of God on earth, and the "Unholy Synod" of the Russian Church bowed, not before the Christ, but bent low before the czar. They betrayed Christ, even as they betrayed the sons and daughters of men, their own blood, the Russian peasants and soldiers.

Religion Their Only Solace.

The people of Russia held firmly to their faith in God. The rest and ease their faith gave them was the only comfort they had. In moments of intense religious communion they were lifted out of themselves and for seconds forgot their burdens. These seconds were long spaces of relief, green spots in the endless desert waste of life.

How Christ must have wept when he witnessed the "Holy Synod," the monkish rascals, with their sacrilegious icons, silencing the protests of souls, throttling the cry for freedom, for the people. The czar was the "Little Father," the divine agent of God on earth, and the "Unholy Synod" of the Russian Church bowed, not before the Christ, but bent low before the czar. They betrayed Christ, even as they betrayed the sons and daughters of men, their own blood, the Russian peasants and soldiers.

It was agreed by and between the Holy Synod and the czars that the Russian worshippers of God must not know how to read or write his name. So it was that the orthodox church of Russia used religion to insult God and hold his creatures in bondage. It was the only great church in the world that did not provide prayer books for its members. It was argued that if the people had prayer books they would learn to read, and if they read the Christ message on the Sabbath they might read the strange and dangerous books on Monday and Tuesday and the other days of the week. They might misuse their ability to read, and read things like the American Declaration of Independence. The churches of the Byzantine painted the story of religion on the side of its walls. They gave the people an education by the picture book method, we use for children. Before we have reached the kindergarten age.

Bolshevism Officially Launched.

The birth certificate of bolshevism was issued on November 10, 1917.

"The All-Russian Congress of the Councils of Workers', Soldiers' and Peasants' Deputies decrees the form of the administration of the country, PENDING THE MEETING OF THE CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY. The provisional workers' and peasants' government is to be called the Council of People's Commissioners. The administration of the individual branches of state life is to be entrusted to boards, the composition of which is to secure the carrying out of the program proclaimed by the congress in close contact with the organizations of workers, soldiers, peasants and employees. The government authority belongs to the board and chairman of these commissioners, that is, to the people's commissioners, and the right of systematizing them belongs to the All-Russian Congress of the Councils of Workers' and Peasants' and Soldiers' Deputies and its Central Executive Committee."

The government of the czar was autocratic, not because it was a bad government and misgoverned the people. It was autocratic because the people did not have a voice in it. If there was to be a genuinely free Russia, who could anticipate and who would dare write out and put into operation the plan of government without giving all of the people of Russia a chance to pass upon the plan and help formulate it through their own chosen representatives?

This was the first promise the bolshevik leaders made to the Russians. They broke it. It has never been fulfilled. In the constitution and decrees of the soviet government they have tried to explain, excuse and condone this breach of promise. Fairly interpreted, all they have said in defense of this abuse of power, this violation of trust, is in substance: "It was necessary to dissolve the Constituent Assembly; it might have interfered with our plans; it might have jeopardized soviet government." What right did they have to think, act, and decide for the people any more than the czar had?

In speeches and writings Lenin and Trotsky have since in a veiled way suggested that the peasants elected members of the middle class to represent them instead of peasants. What of it? If the peasants make mistakes they will learn and profit by their mistakes. They cannot become independent until they get a chance to exercise independence. No man can get muscle by letting another fellow use the dumbbells. Russians—peasants, workers and bourgeois—are all human beings, and a government, to be democratic, must be, as Lincoln put it, "of the people, for the people and by the people." A government that is afraid of the influence and power of three or four per cent of the people isn't able to live, and it doesn't deserve to.

Gladly Obeyed Lenin.

Lenine issued his famous order, "Peasants, seize the land." This command was obeyed with great enthusiasm. They forgot all about freedom and the constitutional convention. They understood what land meant, they had been taught that by being denied it. They knew little about political phrases and framework. The order to seize the land from the serfs their heaviest chains. Lenin became their liberator—his was the voice that said "seize the land." Probably the peasants would have done it anyway. Disorder and unrest had destroyed all respect for property rights. Property rights had a different meaning in Russia than elsewhere; property rights meant the right to beat human beings, to buy and sell serfs. Yet the fact that Lenin had uttered the words made them reverence and respect him, even as a man will be thankful to one who has told him to be careful of a hole in the sidewalk, notwithstanding the fact he has already seen it. Bolshevism started with great popularity. This was the secret of it.

Of course the order to seize the land, all land, was based on the idea that the owners of land held title by and through their own wrongful conduct. God had made the ground and sunshine, and those who had taken title to it had only moved on and forced others off. This is the way the bolsheviks reasoned, and from this point of view they were consistent. From the world's point of view it was confiscation. It was dishonest. Many people believe that acquiring property is frequently the result of industry and thrift; in some cases the title to property is based upon cunning, scheming and force. All of us know that there are some who are without any private property because they prefer to squander their time, dissipate their energy and live shiftless lives. After all, it is a matter of opinion, and from the point of view of the bolsheviks the order "Peasants, seize the land" may have been justified.

But when the order was given, the peasants seized it not for the community but to own it privately. On this point there can be no difference of opinion among honest, impartial, fair-minded men, and when the peasants seized the land to hold, use and own it for their private property they were guilty of taking title by the very means others had taken the land, and against whom they had complained and cried "thief!"

The Russian people have the power to think. They realize that they have acquired property by the very methods they have always condemned in others. Their natural selfishness may constrain them to keep this property. The sufferings they have gone through may mitigate the offense, but one effect was inevitable, and that one effect the most serious that could happen to a people on the threshold of a free future. I refer to the weakening of their moral nature, the making of a precedent justifying dishonesty. I have found the ill effects of this act on the patient, Russia, in every subsequent symptom.

To Do Away With "Slackers."

Eliminating the "work slacker" is the new job which the American legion has taken upon itself, acting in conjunction with the war department's system of employment bureaus throughout the country. This type of ex-serviceman, while not numerous, is occasionally a serious detriment to the work of placing ex-soldiers and sailors in satisfactory jobs. Their attitude of shiftlessness after getting the place causes dissatisfaction among employers who are really trying to help and gives a black eye to other service men who still need work.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

MORE FOOD FOR THE CONVALESCENT.

We all know those houses scrubbed to a sort of raw cleanliness and reeking with the mardravin of an overworked wife, from which the unwary guest beats a hasty retreat, and to which the family returns with a shudder and sleep. The genuine food of such a house is a business failure.—Hazel Kewley.

Food which is easily digested, attractive and also nourishing, should be served to those who are regaining health.

Egg Soup.—Separate the yolk and white of a fresh egg, and beat each. Add three drops of lemon juice and a tablespoonful of sugar to the yolk, then fold in the white. Pour over the egg mixture one cupful of hot milk, beating while pouring the milk. Flavor with a little nutmeg, or orange juice. Add a pinch of salt and serve.

Baked Apple.—Remove the cores from nice tart apples and fill the cavities with chopped raisins or dates and sugar. Current or any good jelly may be used in place of the raisins. Bake in a moderate oven until tender. Serve on a pretty plate garnished with a flower.

Pineapple Pudding.—Place a cupful of boiling water in a double boiler. Add, when boiling, a tablespoonful of sugar, the yolk of an egg and a teaspoonful of cornstarch. Stir and cook until smooth and thick, then add a half cupful of pineapple juice or finely grated pineapple. Cook until hot, fold in the stiffly beaten white of an egg and chill. Heap in a pretty dish and garnish with whipped cream.

Rice Pudding.—As rice when well-cooked is most easily digested, it makes a very good dish for a convalescent. Take two tablespoonfuls of well-washed rice and cook in a double boiler with one cupful of milk until the rice is tender. Stir in a beaten egg, sugar, salt and any desired flavoring to taste. Serve with cream and sugar, or add a few chopped dates and serve with butter.

Prune Whip.—Stew half a dozen prunes in the water in which they were soaked over night, put them through a sieve, add a few drops of lemon juice and the beaten white of an egg. Serve heaped in a pretty glass topped with whipped cream.

Poison Gas to Rout Robbers. Poison gas foils would-be robbers who blow open safes or vaults equipped with a new protective device, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. A thin glass bottle, filled with chemicals is placed in a metal holder inside the doors. When an explosive is used to break them open, the concussion shatters the flask and releases its contents. Exposed to the air, the chemicals form a gas which suffocates and causes temporary blindness.

Uncertain Experiment. "Do you think it will help matters to change the name of wood alcohol?" "I dunno," answered Uncle Bill Bottetop. "A rogue sometimes does his best work under an alias."

Teach Boys Art of Fishing. A fishing school, the first in Italy, has been opened at Naples, with an attendance of eighty enthusiastic and ambitious fisher boys. Extended trips to fishing grounds will be made in a large motor boat, the gift of the Union Red Cross of America, and instruction will be given in the practice and theory of fishing. Some of the lessons will deal with the possible use of fish for canning, the nature and extent of oil in fish, and its extraction and preservation.

It is believed the school will do much good here, as a large part of the population earns its livelihood by fishing, but still employs old-fashioned methods. Several other schools are being organized, one of them exclusively for girls.

"Be Sure You Are Right." The vital thing in achievement is a fixed goal backed up by a loyal will. It's easy to do a thing after you have been convinced of its justice. Half the battle is finding out just what you ought to do, and making up your mind to do it. When you are committed to a task you feel no peace until you have gone your limit toward its achievement. The wise thing to do is to make sure that what you think of doing adds to the general progress you intend to make. "Be sure you are right" is more than a commonplace. It's a fundamental in the great world while. Make haste as fast as you can, but continually remind yourself that you want to be sure which way you're headed.—Exchange.

Easy to Judge Character. Make a Study of the Handwriting of Those of Whom Doubt is Entertained.

Handwriting indicates a good deal more than appears on the surface, if what Louise Rice says in People's Magazine is true.

"Want a good, kind woman to live in your widowed home and take care of Willy and your bulldog?" she asks. "Look at her capital 'A' and her small 'y'." If she makes them in a certain way she will devote herself to you, for she is the gentle, tender, mother type, and will be contented with little, so long as she may love and care for the weak and small. I said, she's that type of mother, because there are many different kinds of mothers, all good in their way. I have often thought that if life were well regulated we'd have special mothers for infants, for half-grown children, for lands and lasses, and some wonderful mothers for our grown-up children, who really need them most of all.

When Rev. and Mrs. Pliny A. Allen, Jr. leave for their new home in the West the latter part of the summer they will frequently consult the two handsome gold watches which were presented to them Thursday night at an entertainment given in their honor by the Chapin class. Each member was privileged to invite a guest, with the result that about 100 persons were gathered in the church parlors. The pillars were banked with cat o' nine tail reeds and the effect was especially striking. The general decorative effect of pink and blue was produced through a happy mingling of wild flowers, pink peonies, pink roses and larkspur. Large baskets of wild flowers sat on the radiators. The committee which had charge of the decorations comprised Miss Lucy Rhodes, Mrs. H. N. McDougall, Mrs. C. E. Daniels and Mrs. R. L. Wiggin. From tables which were decorated with pink roses and pink sweet peas, and which were illuminated with pink candles, were served the refreshments—punch, sandwiches and fancy cakes. The committee which had this feature in charge was made up of Mrs. E. R. Veazie, Mrs. Susie Davis, Mrs. Orrin Smith, Mrs. F. L. Green, Mrs. Anson Glidden, Miss Lena Lawrence, Miss Gladys Jones and Miss Gladys Blethen. An orchestra comprising Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Veazie, a piano solo by Miss Evelyn McDougall, a piano duet by Miss Marion Marsh and Miss Frances McDougall and a vocal duet by Miss Elizabeth McDougall and Miss Edith Adams of Cambridge, Mass. Miss Mabel Lamb, Miss Alice Fuller, Miss Myrtle Herrick and Mrs. Percy L. Roberts had charge of the program. The guests joined later in an advertising game, in which prizes were won by Miss Louise Tyles, Mrs. William Benner, E. R. Veazie and Mr. Beach. The watches for Mr. and Mrs. Allen were presented at the same time, and absolute surprise was written on the faces of the recipients. There were no presentation speeches, an no responses—for both Mr. and Mrs. Allen were too much affected to say what was in their minds and hearts. J., are having a house party at the Ahern farm in Cushing. Miss Marion Webb is chaperone.

One of the prettiest of the many social events at the Elks Home this season was the luncheon and auction given Thursday afternoon by Mrs. G. W. Buchelder, Mrs. F. E. Follett, Mrs. R. E. Eaton and Mrs. C. W. Procter. The hostesses were assisted in serving by Mrs. P. E. Demons, Mrs. E. M. O'Neill, Miss Alta McCoy, Mrs. Frank A. Tirell, Jr., Mrs. Clarence Shaw, Mrs. O. B. Lovejoy, Miss Alice Hayhurst, and Miss Helene Bennett. The dining tables were decorated with pink peonies, while the adjoining rooms were beautified with clusters of red lilies. Upstairs were arranged 17 tables for the auction players, and thither the guests repaired after the tempting menu had been discussed. The floral decorations in the card room comprised ox-eyed daisies and blue larkspur. The prize-winners were Mrs. Julia Burpee, Mrs. B. B. Smith, Mrs. William Bennett of Boston, Mrs. Huson D. Ames, Mrs. George T. Wade, Mrs. Carl Halliwell, Mrs. J. H. Wiggin and Mrs. Harry W. French. Music by Marston's Orchestra lent further charm to one of the season's best affairs.

HOT WEATHER CAUSES IRRITABILITY

In the individual whose bodily condition is not up to normal. When your nerves are on the "ragged edge" be sure that there is an underlying cause for the condition.

Now, where are you going to look for the condition which interferes with these nerves? Why, naturally, at the only place in the body where pressure upon nerves can exist. That place is the spine column where the nerves leave through little holes or foramina. When the body joints slip out of place they pinch these nerves.

The Chiropractor concerns himself with the removal of this pressure by re-aligning the vertebrae to their normal position. When this is done innervation is resumed normally, each cell, tissue and organ receives its quota which permits the various parts to perform their intended function. We will be pleased to talk your case over, giving you a spinal analysis without obligation.

LIFTING THE AMERICA CUP.

After Seventeen Years Gallant Sir Thomas Lipton Makes Another Try—History of Races.

Now that the international yacht races are on, everybody is asking a multitude of questions, many of which can best be answered by reading the following history of the "America Cup," and the various attempts which have been made to "lift" it.

The America Cup is a trophy that cost $500, and was offered by the Royal Yacht Squadron in 1851 for a race around the Isle of Wight. Foreign boats were invited to compete, and the America, owned by Commodore Stevens and other members of the New York Yacht Club, was entered. There was no time allowance for tonnage, and the America won a very creditable race, since she was by no means the largest of the competitors.

The trophy thereupon became the property of Commodore Stevens, who in 1857, deeded the cup to the New York Yacht Club, to be held as a perpetual challenge trophy for international races between vessels of not less than 30 nor more than 300 tons. The first challenge came in 1870 from James Ashbury, who raced his yacht Cambria against the whole fleet of the New York Yacht Club, and an American yacht named Magic was the winner. In 1871 Mr. Ashbury returned to the attack, and on this occasion it was agreed that there should be a single defender. This was the yacht Columbia, owned by Franklin Osgood. The Columbia defended the cup until she lost through an accident, after which the New York Yacht Club substituted the Sappho, owned by W. P. Douglas. The cup remained in the United States, but the race ended in a protest.

In 1876 Vice Commodore Gifford, backed by the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, challenged with the schooner Countess of Dufferin. Two races were sailed and both were won by the American defender, the schooner Madeline, owned by J. S. Dickerson.

In 1881 a syndicate of Canadians organized by Alexander Cuthbert challenged with the Canadian sloop Atalanta and was defeated in the two races by the American sloop Mischief, owned by J. R. Rusk.

After this race the New York Yacht Club decided that the deed of gift was not adequate, and returned the cup to the surviving donor, George L. Schuyler, who amended the deed or gift by providing the challenging yachts should proceed to the port of contest on their own bottoms, and also that no vessel could race again until two years had elapsed. In 1882 the club revised its system of measurement, which determined the time allowance to be given or received. In 1891 the rule was again changed, and the present rule was put in force in 1903.

Meantime several challengers had been defeated by the American defender. In 1885 Sir Richard Sutton of the Royal Yacht Squadron challenged with the cutter Gengata. Two races were sailed, in both of which the challenger was defeated by the American sloop Puritan, owned by J. M. Forbes. The next year Lieut. Henn of the Royal Northern Yacht Club challenged with the cutter Galatea and was defeated in two races by the American sloop Mayflower, owned by the Gen. C. J. Paine. In 1887 James Bell came over with the cutter Thistle. The sloop Volunteer, owned by Gen. Paine, had little difficulty in defeating the Thistle in the two races.

In 1889 Lord Dunraven challenged, but the Royal Yacht Squadron declined to approve his challenge on the ground that the new deed of gift was illegal and not in the interest of good sport. In 1893 Dunraven came over with the cutter Valkyrie II and was defeated in three races by the American sloop Vigilant, owned by a syndicate headed by C. O. Iselin. In 1895 Dunraven returned with the cutter Valkyrie III. The sloop Defender was built by the Iselin syndicate to defend the trophy. In the second contest Valkyrie III was disqualified and withdrew.

In 1899 Sir Thomas Lipton brought over his first challenger, Shamrock II. To meet her the Iselin syndicate built the sloop Columbia, which won the first race of the series by 10 minutes and 8 seconds. In the next race the Shamrock was disabled and the defender had a sailover. The third race was won by Columbia in 6 minutes and 34 seconds.

For the next race, in 1901, Sir Thomas Lipton built the Shamrock II, while the New York Yacht Club again relied upon the Columbia to defend the cup. The Columbia won the first and third of the series. Shamrock II finished first in the second contest, but lost the race on time allowance.

The last series was in 1903, when Sir Thomas Lipton brought over the Shamrock III to sail against the Reliance. The races were sailed in August and Reliance captured all three without difficulty. In the final contest the challenger became lost in a fog.

END OF THE RUM RULE

Fathers and Mothers Should Vote In Favor of New Order of Things.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Thoughtlessness many times leads to a bad end. Often we hear men speaking in derogatory terms of the 18th Amendment. This is not only true in relation to this amendment, but how often we pass judgment on many an important question without giving it serious thought.

In relation to national prohibition, one often stands appalled at the lack of judgment or indifference displayed by educated people and aspirants for not only minor political office, but even candidates for gubernatorial as well as presidential ones. It seems very remarkable that men who lay claim to those higher moral principles fail to see the results of intemperance on the nation and are willing to lend their aid to nullification.

American parents as a whole display a strong characteristic to safeguard the life of a child; they follow every step from babyhood through childhood to man or womanhood; they note with pride their achievements at school and when they are fitted to begin the battle of life they stand at the parting of the ways with a "God bless and God speed you" on the road to success. How is it that the fond hopes of many a parent have been shattered as they noted the downfall of those whom they have so carefully reared? All these years of parental effort swept away—and by whom?

Did it ever occur to you that when you entered the polling booth you held in your hand the destiny not only of the nation but of your own beloved offspring? When you stood at the forks of the road, held the hand of your boy and said, "I have great hopes of you" and said good-bye, did you see that he entered the road over whose entrance is the sign of the cross that spells success in magnified letters of gold, or did you allow him to enter the road over whose entrance is the word "Nullification" and along whose pathway is strewn barrels of beer and light wines? Is this the beverage you gave the child in the old home? No man who stops to think would ever encourage his children to enter upon a highway so strewn with broken lives and banished hopes.

But remember your parental responsibility does not end at the threshold of the home. It is your duty to safeguard the pathway of life over which your child and mine must pass to reach the goal. How easily these old political demagogues can pull the wool over the eyes of some people by bringing before them a vision of that three hundred and eighty millions of dollars the tax payer will lose if the 18th amendment stands, a loss of revenue, they say, that will have to be made up out of the pockets of the tax payers. Do they tell what the other side of the ledger discloses? For the privilege of enriching the brewer and distiller, 100,000 young men a year in this land of ours would find a drunkard's end. Which would you prefer? Three hundred and fifty millions in revenue a year for say ten years, or one million stalwart American citizens living and honoring but only their fathers and mothers, but a sound and solid principles and makes safe the highway of life over which its citizens are passing.

It's up to you, fathers and mothers. The ballot is your weapon of defense. If you cast it for disinterested candidates, or for those who would nullify the law, then the destiny of those you love is in the hands of the man who deals in light wines and beer. Does he love them better than you? Is he more interested in their future? Which is your choice? C. L. Maguire, Thomaston, July 10.

Recommends Var-ne-sis To All Who Suffer From Rheumatism

W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass.
Dear Sir:—For six years I suffered with rheumatism. My knees were so stiff I could scarcely walk, and in going up stairs I had to pull myself up by the hand of the rail. I suffered constant pain. Physicians said I had muscular neuralgia, and I took many remedies without relief. At times I was unable to turn in bed. My stomach was so bad that I could scarcely retain food. I took Var-ne-sis and found it of great value for my stomach as well as for my rheumatism, as I am now free from rheumatism and can eat anything with no ill effects. Var-ne-sis is a wonderful medicine and I can recommend it to all suffering as I did.

"Partners Three," a strong emotional story, with beautiful Enid Bennett heading the cast, is central attraction on the bill for Monday and Tuesday. She loathed the froth, the coarseness, the cheap glitter of the cabarets. Yet she was a child of the bright lights—a dancer in a Broadway "palace of jazz." There came a chance to escape, and she took it. But the man she married was a coward and a brute, and he left her in a burning desert of the West. This is only the beginning of "Partners Three." See it through to the end—the beginning of a new life that she loved—adv.

LIME FOR SOILS

Farm Bureau Office Calls Attention To Its Need In Knox and Lincoln Counties.

Experience has proven that very few of the farmers in Knox and Lincoln counties do not need lime, at least in certain parts. Even though there is a large supply of this very important fertilizing material right at hand, very few people are taking advantage of it in such a way that it is being of benefit to them. As a consequence, the Lime Division of the National Fertilizer Association has offered to furnish through the County Farm Bureau, free of charge, a limited amount of lime for full application to the farmers in Knox and Lincoln counties, in order to show the comparative value of lime and ground limestone. The conditions are as follows: The soil to be used in test must be shown to be in need of lime by acidity tests and by nature of plants growing on it. The piece should be divided into three sections: one to be limed with hard lime; one with ground limestone, and the other not limed. The amount of lime should be the amount estimated to make the most profitable application. The land lime and ground limestone should be applied in such proportion as to carry equal amounts of calcium oxide, or at the rate of 1000 pounds of limestone to 1500 pounds of land lime. The lime should be applied to land which is to be planted next year to a crop needing lime. A report of the test how it is handled and the effect on resulting crops must be furnished. Area to be limed should be measured, and the corners marked with permanent stakes. Anyone desiring to do this work should get in touch with the County Farm Bureau office in Warren at once.
